Sam Jett and Mose Feltner have filed sensational affidavits with Judges Riddle, of the Breathitt Circuit Court, asking for military protection when they go to Jackson to answer the call of the indictments against them. Both men state that they will be killed unless furnished a guard, and both have filed petitions for change of venue. The affidavits supporting the petitions allege that under existing conditions it will be impossible for them to secure a fair trial in Breathitt county.

GAS LEASE FIGHT.

Mayor Weaver Dismissed From Office Two Principal Members of His Cabinet.

IS IN THE FIGHT TO THE BITTER END

Political Battle Is Now On That Will Be Carried to the Polls in November.

The Mayor Has Called In as Counsel Elihu Root, of New York, and Former Judge James G. Gordon, of Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, May 24.—In his effort to defeat the consummation of the plan to lease the city gas works to the United Gas Improvement Co. for 75 years for $25,000,000, Mayor Weaver dismissed from office the two principal members of his cabinet and thereby delivered a staggering blow to the dominant political organization of this city which has caused probably the greatest sensation in the history of Philadelphia municipal affairs. While the citizens were expecting some sort of a move on the part of the mayor they were not prepared for the immediate removal from office of David J. Smyth, the director of the department of public safety, and Lester E. Costello, the director of the department of public works. The mayor has announced that he is in the fight to the bitter end, which means that a great political battle is now on and will be carried to the polls next November. In his fight against the gas lease and the republican organization the mayor has called in as counsel Elihu Root, of New York, and former Judge James G. Gordon, of this city. Judge Gordon is a democrat.

New Directors Appointed.

The removal of Directors Smyth and Costello did not come until after the mayor had asked them to resign immediately. In reply each sent a letter to the mayor offering his resignation to take effect when his successor "shall be qualified." The mayor answered them by demanding their immediate resignation. The answers the directors returned were to the effect that they had tendered their resignations "in the usual form and in accordance with the provisions of the city charter" and that they would stand by them as tendered.

After the removals had been announced the mayor made public the names of the men he had selected for the places. They are Col. Sheldon Porter, to fill the office of director of public safety ad interim, and A. Lincoln Ackers, to be director of the department of public works ad interim. The fight, over the form of resignation was an important one, in that the new directors can only be qualified by the confirmation of council, which is controlled by the organization.

Will Councils Confirm Appointments? It is not likely that city councils will confirm the men appointed by the mayor, but they will hold the office ad interim. Neither Mayor Weaver nor the removed men would make a statement as to the specific reasons for the changes beyond the general statement that the proposed lease of the gas works was the cause of it. The organization, to a man, was in favor of the lease, while the mayor was unflinchingly opposed to it. He was utterly ignored in the transaction and he has been urged by the newspapers and reform organizations to veto the ordinance passed by council last Thursday. This he has announced he would do. In the meantime he brought every influence to bear on councilmen to sustain him in his veto. In this he had little success. The two directors refused to use their influence to help him and this led the mayor to ask the directors for their resignations.

Every request of the mayor for delay in the matter of passing the gas lease ordinance met with refusal on the part of council. In addition to this, when the gas lease was passed last week both branches of council passed over the mayor's veto eight bills of minor importance that he had returned that day. Ordinarily vetoes are laid over for at least a week.

LIGHTNING'S PRANK.

Exploded Turpentine and Scattered Burning Fluid Over Children.

Huntsville, Ala., May 24.—Lightning played a curious and fatal prank at the home of Morris Getty, a weaver of the Howe cotton mill. A bolt of lightning struck the house and descended the chimney to the mazel, where it exploded a bottle of turpentine and scattered the blazing fluid over the children in front of the fire place. One of the children died a short time later and others are in a serious condition.

WILL BE OPEN WAR SOUTHERN STATES

All Prospects of a Settlement of Chicago Teamsters' Strike Have Disappeared.

LUMBERMEN'S DRIVERS GO OUT.

The Possibilities For Increased Rioting Are Vastly Enlarged by the Spread of the Strike.

Preparations Were Made For a Prompt Response By National Guards and a Large Consignment of Riot Cartridges Received.

Chicago, May 24.—All prospects of peace in the teamsters' strike have disappeared and it will be open war from this time on. The last conference looking toward a peaceable adjustment was held between James B. Barry, business agent of the Express Drivers' union, and the local managers of the seven express companies. Business Agent Barry opened the negotiations by saying:

"Our position is this: I want all the men reinstated except those who have been guilty of violence. I can not do anything different. That is what the local union wants and that is what the local officers have told me to demand. That is all I can do. The men told me that they all want to go back in a body or they won't go back at all. That is the position of the union and the union officials."

The reply of the representatives of the express companies was brief. It was:

"Our opposition to the reinstatement of the men will be the same four years from now as it is to-day. We will not take them back under any circumstances."

This brought the conference to a close and all parties concerned in it immediately left the city hall.

Spread of the Strike.

The spread of the strike was not as large as was anticipated. Four hundred and sixty-two drivers employed by 28 firms belonging to the Lumbermen's association went out. In each case the men were ordered to make deliveries to boycotted houses and the usual strike followed. It is expected that the full number of 2,000 drivers employed by these lumber concerns will soon be on strike.

With the union drivers employed by the lumbermen's association on strike it will be only a matter of a short time until outside unions will become involved in the trouble. Just as soon as the building material on hand now has been used up and an attempt is made to make deliveries with non union drivers the other labor unions employed on the work will order their men to refuse to handle nonunion material. Unless the strike is settled within a short time the carpenters, stone masons and other affiliated organizations are bound to become involved in the difficulty.

The possibilities for increased rioting are vastly enlarged by the spread of the strike to the lumber district. The territory which generally goes under this designation extends along the river front east to west about three and a half miles and for probably a mile to the north and south of the stream.

Will Call For Troops.

It has therefore been determined that at the first outbreak of rioting such as marked the strike ten days ago a call will be made on Gov. Deussen for militia. Sheriff Barrett said: "At the first outbreak of trouble which in any way approaches the rioting we have had I shall call for troops. I will do everything in my power to maintain order, but the minute it gets beyond my control I will appeal to the governor and the troops will be on the ground within less than two hours. The troops which will be first ordered out if the necessity arises, compose the first brigade of the Illinois National guard, commanded by Brig. Gen. George M. Minnion. It comprises the First, Second, Seventh and Eighth regiments of infantry, the last being a colored regiment and the First regiment of cavalry. In all about 4,000 men."

Every precaution has been made for a prompt response by the national guards and a large consignment of riot cartridges has been received. These differ from the ordinary rifle bullets in that they contain three backshot each in place of the single steel bullet.

Rear Guard Fighting.

Tokio, May 24.—Imperial army headquarters reporting the day says: "The Russian cavalry which detoured toward Fakhmen from the right bank of the Ildo river was frequently defeated by our rear guards."

Four Hundred Mules Perished.

St. Louis, May 24.—Four hundred mules were burned in a $100,000 fire in the National stock yards in East St. Louis. Between 900 and 1,000 mules were in the stables which burned.

Louisville, Ky., May 24.—Alan-a-Dale equaled the track record for seven furlongs at Churchill Downs, covering the distance in 1:26 flat and easily beating Bad News and White Plume. A large crowd was in attendance.

The Opening Session of the Industrial Parliament in the National Capital.

ELEVEN STATES REPRESENTED.

An Appeal to Be Made For the Removal of the Revenue Tax on Tobacco.

In the Past 80 Years the American People Engaged in Farming Have Dwindled From 75 To 35 Per Cent. of Population.

Washington, May 24.—Eleven states—Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia and Virginia are represented by delegates in the Southern Industrial parliament, which began its sessions here. There are also present representatives from New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, who are interested in the objects of which the parliament was called, which includes the exchange of ideas regarding matters of importance to the development of the south.

There was a number of addresses, including one by Willet N. Hays, the assistant secretary of agriculture, who gave assurances that the department of agriculture and agricultural institutions could be counted on to join any large effective movement for bettering the conditions surrounding farmers and home makers. Mr. Hays said in the past 80 years the American people engaged in farming had dwindled from 75 to 35 per cent of the whole population, but in the south about 57 per cent. are so engaged.

Immigration To the South.

Addresses were made by W. V. Lumpkin, of Columbia, S. C.; M. V. Richards, of the Southern railway, who discussed mainly immigration to the south, and Dr. Charles A. Cary, of the Alabama agricultural college, who urged steps to exterminate the fever which the cattle and advocated that the southern people raise more live stock, particularly for beef purposes.

An appeal was made by John S. Cunningham, president of the Tobacco Growers' association of North Carolina, that efforts be made for removal of the revenue tax on tobacco as a war measure. Under that measure he declared the tobacco industry has paid into the national treasury immense sums and that its operation has been the cause of breaking up and destroying tobacco factories in Richmond, Danville and other southern cities.

SWITCHMEN'S UNION.

Frank T. Hawley, of Buffalo, N. Y., Re-Elected Grand Master.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 24.—Frank T. Hawley, of Buffalo, N. Y., was re-elected grand master of the Switchmen's Union of North America on the first ballot by the national convention of the organization which is in session here. Opposing Mr. Hawley was John T. McMillan, mayor of Ashland, O.

All of the other old officers of the lodge were elected with the exception of first and third grand masters. The officers for this year are: Grand Master, Frank T. Hawley; first vice grand master, S. E. Hehrerling, of Buffalo; second vice grand master, J. B. Corners, of Chicago; third vice grand master, A. Horschbarger, Pittsburg; grand secretary and treasurer, M. R. Welch, Buffalo.

SUNDAY BALL PLAYING.

Opinion Given By the Corporation Counsel May Stop It in Brooklyn.

New York, May 24.—An opinion given by Corporation Counsel Delaney to Police Commissioner McAdoo may put an end to Sunday baseball by professional teams in Greater New York. The corporation counsel finds that Sunday baseball playing by professionals is illegal and that any professional's taking part in such a game should be arrested and tried for violation of the Sunday law. Regarding baseball games where no admission is charged but where programs are sold the opinion says that arrests may be made just the same as if admissions were charged.

This Way Sinners!

A word about the flour you use—"OBELISK" & "GOLD MEDAL" flour is made by special process of aeration in the manufacture, the flour stock passing through the various machines is constantly agitated and subjected to currents of cool purified air. This not only makes the minute flour particles "sharp" and "granular," but also keeps the machine system sweet and sanitary. There is no possibility of dust or foreign matter in the flour. The mills are at all times as clean and neat as a first-class restaurant.

You can buy this flour in bags at 70 cents or in barrels at $5.75 at

OUR SERIAL.

THE HEALTH OF NATURE.

My soul has wandered long in paths of doubt,
Seeking in vain for aught that satisfies;
Longing for some strong hand to lead me out.

From all the darkness and the vanities
Thick set about my path, for I have seen
My brightest hopes death-stricken in their youth.

The pitiless sadness of the night have been;
The battered wrecks of innocence and truth,
Until my heart grows sick within my breast.

And life seems but a game wherein all men
Are rudely tossed by Fate in sportive jest,
And marked with scars they never lose again.

But when the voice of Nature speaks to me
From all her hills, and at her beautiful woods,
Bidding my heart rejoice, and when I see
The grandeur of her ever-varying moods,

The trees uplifting mighty arms of green—
The clouds that float like lace across the blue;
The softly flowing river, and the sheen
Of flowers in every beautiful form and hue;

Or when the voice of thunder rolls along,
Reverberating 'mongst the ancient hills—
And lightning lances dart the clouds amoung,

My soul forgets its petty cares and illa.

Ah! then my storm-tossed heart, that erst did go
Joy-seeking through a world of care and pain,
And found not joy, but only bitter woe—
Droops, wearied, upon Nature's breast again;

There to entrust her kindly hand to nurse
The cruel, aching wounds—for what am I?
An atom in the boundless universe,
A bit of driftwood on Life's shore tossed high

By Time's gray, heaving ocean, stretching far
Beyond my sight, into Eternity.

What matters it if many a stain and scar
Mark the short life that has been given me?

And yet in God's own image was I wrought;
With soul as stainless steel into the world
To do my part, and if I bring Him naught,
But come with empty hands and banner furled.

Unto His judgment-seat at close of day,
With soul all sullied in the mire of sin,
With all His gifts despised flung away—
Ah! how in that day shall I answer Him?

—Mary Collier, in Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

ready again to blaze with the battle fire of the south, but that presently took refuge beneath the white flag of their own, long-lashed lids, and with another sigh, with a soft glow stealing slowly over rounded throat and cheek and even to the snowy brow, the beautiful, humbled face turned fairly toward him and buried itself in the blue of the broad shoulder. Like that of Appomattox, it was the surrender of utter exhaustion.

They were standing two hours later in the dusk of the old portico. There had been a blessed, yet almost solemn, meeting at the bedside of the aging father, and all the story of that lamentable month two years earlier, with many a tear had been told. With the squire and Elinor returned to the west there was no one to warn them against McKinnon, who from the very first had seemed to gain the guileless doctor's confidence. It was Chilton's childlike belief that every well-mannered man was a gentleman until proved otherwise, and it was not long before McKinnon knew all about them and all about Jack. It had been Rosalie's growing belief that her aunt must have had help, and that Squire Benton or his son was the helper; but at the last her father amazed her with the admission that he had given his personal note to McKinnon for money to be sent to Jack, and for other needs. Little by little her intuitive aversion to the man had given way before his apparently unobtrusive courtesies. He had never hinted at such a thing as a quarrel with the Bentons, father or son. He never referred to them except guardedly until Ladue's recapture and Jack's narrow escape. Then he had told her aunt, to whom he had been kindness and helpfulness itself, that the plan was known to the secret service, that Benton and Ladue had been still in covert correspondence; that Ladue wished to make it appear that he was striving to rejoin his regiment, while in point of fact he planned to be again captured and confined where he could escape the dangers of the battlefield, and the expedition to capture him and Jack was guided by information furnished by Benton himself—Benton, who had been under a cloud and hoped by the capture of confederate officers to win his way back to favor. Rosalie had indignantly refused to believe at first; but had even had a fierce verbal affray with the major, who brought the Virginian, Jennings, to prove a truth that, as McKinnon put it, he "never thought could reach her ears or it should never have escaped these lips." An eloquent man was McKinnon, and music was in his voice and mischief in his soul. Benton had planned, he said, to capture Jack, and Jennings there stood ready to swear to it. Then, before she had time to recover herself, she had been ushered into that cozy parlor, and had come face to face with the man who filled her thoughts. It all looked like design on his part, and in her wrath and doubt and bitter trouble, she had hurled her accusation and fled. But, long before Ladue's visit to Charlottesville, she had begun to suspect both McKinnon and Jennings. After his coming she had known no moment of peace, yet how could she write or tell him whom she had so outraged? Of what use was it? He would forget it—and her—in course of time.

"DOES THIS LOOK LIKE IT?"

"Does this look like it?" asked Benton. They were standing by the open doorway. She had brought down to him the beautiful sash he had left with her when he rode away, for this very night he must return to Gordonsville and John his chief, for the morning's march. Meantime he had been winding it about her, the silken folds clinging to the dainty white dainty, and now, having thrown the tasseled ends over his arm, had seized her soft hands and was looking down fondly, wonderingly, in that almost unrealizing, unbelieveing bliss of newly requited love.

"Does this look like it?" that for two years I should have been making every effort to reach you, only to be stormed at as if I had aimed past pardon in having clasped you—here?" and raising her little hands he held them firmly upon his breast, the creamy white upon the dusky blue. Then, one hand being quite big enough for that purpose, he stole his right arm round her and drew her closer. The sound of slow, measured footfalls and soft voices could be faintly heard along the shaded street. Some of her coterie were surely coming to scout the approach of her erstwhile queen. Not that they would interrupt for worlds! They only wished to see. And through the summerlike stillness of the night, afar down at the railway station, the sputtering hiss of steam told that the Iron horse was waiting impatient for the start. "It may be weeks before I can hope to reach you again," he murmured, "and—Isn't that Georgia Scott's voice?" A swift upward glance of the soft, dark eyes said yes, and though for an instant they fell again, it was but for an instant; there was something so compelling in the glow of his. "Then—" said he speaking and bending lower.

"Then—what?" she murmured, persistently insistent on being told, though her head drooped again.

"Then—it's time for some token of surrender, is it not?" And now, loosening the little hands, leaving them self-clasping on his breast, he wound the other arm about and drew her closer still.

"I don't—quite—" she dimpled, her soft cheek sinking on her own hands, her tiny ear catching the loud beating of his heart, a vagrant tress fluttering in the breath from her parted lips.

"You do, I think," he answered, half smiling. "When a soldier surrenders he gives up his sword. When a girl surrenders she should give up—her lips," and holding her more firmly, he bent yet lower, seeking with wordless eagerness the sweet symbol that he craved. But she nestled closer still where he could not see her glowing face, and the answer came, half stifled, after a moment of shy silence:

"You're not magnanimous like your commander. He would not touch the sword of Gen. Lee."

"I see!"—and this very slowly, "and—you prefer that I should be—like Gen. Grant?"

No answer, verbal at least. Even queens are women and would be wooed. He should be made to know this, even when both heart and lips said yield. But the fate was against her. Silvery laughter and soft voices sounded close at hand now. Ah, some were happy, even in the shadow of the great surrender, since there were still loved ones left for the sweet homecoming.

"It is Georgia," whispered Benton, "and, as I live, Kate Falconer! They'll be here in a minute and I'll be gone. Rosalie, do you remember that night three years ago when you said 'now or never'?"

One moment of fluttering heartbeat—of latent, still smoldering rebellion, then at last—surrender. Slowly and with down-cast eyes the queenly head was raised. One swift look into his glowing face, and the white arms stole about his neck; the rosy mouth uplifted and, meeting the fervent pressure of those bearded, eager lips, in its own sweet way, gave answer.

L'ENVOI.
Three years later, in the early spring of '68, we were steaming back through Mississippi sound, en route for New Orleans by way of the Rigollets. It was an exquisite morning, and the land breeze was laden with the fragrance of the magnolias and soft with the balsam of the southern pine. The steamer darted swiftly through the placid blue waters, bearing among other passengers a little party of officers and ladies, returning from a brief visit to Mobile. Carver was there, captain and brevet lieutenant colonel in the regular service, and still with Hancock, who was then commanding the Department of the Gulf. Benton was there, holding like rank with his old friend of the staff; and with Benton, seated on the upper deck, was Rosalie, looking fondly into his face at times, then again, with earnest interest, on another pair, talking in low tones together at the bows. It had been a solemn pilgrimage, this mission to Mobile. They had gone thither to lay away all that was mortal of Paul Ladue, transferred from the rocky banks of the little stream in far-away Pennsylvania to the shady nook where, all night long in the moonlight, the mocking bird sang in this land of his boyhood and his devoted love. Gathered about his final resting place were few indeed of his kith and kin, but the tempered sunshine fell on fair women and brave men of both north and south—the blue and the gray—all enmity stilled, please God, forever. And of those who stood with tear-dimmed eyes, as a bugler of the Eleventh Alabama sounded the soldier's lullaby over the fresh-heaped mound, Elinor Benton had laid a little spray of lilies of the valley on the lowering casket. It was a gray-sleeved arm, for the old uniform was seen on one or two veterans, that drew her gently away and led her, bowed and reverent, from the burial of her earliest love. It was the same arm on which she was leaning now, as she stood gazing down on the dancing waters under the forefoot, and it was on these two, Elinor and brother Jack, that Queen Rosalie looked with brimming eyes; then, questioning, up into her stalwart husband's face.

But for whom did not Queen Rosalie scheme and plan? Was it not she who, when the Pellams had to part with old Pyramus, sold a precious ring to buy him? Was it not she who found place after place among the officers for young Pomp, well nigh spoiled in the exaltation of being his own master? Was it not she who pleaded for Hector, faithful to her husband through many scenes, yet sometimes lax in duty through the fascinations of New Orleans? The old home at Charlottesville had gone to other hands after the doctor's peaceful death. In '66 Jack had previously settled down to hard work in New Orleans and, like many another manful young Southerner, was winning his own way in the paths of peace. Life seemed vested with new interest to him, however, since the coming, early in the winter, of Aunt Elinor to stand sponsor on a very interesting occasion, and if Rosalie Benton had a wish still ungratified it was one that bade fair soon to be numbered with others of the past. Her soldier Fred was proud and happy in his profession, a success, despite all prophecies of Stanton to the contrary and all pleadings of the squire to quit and learn the law. Her baby boy had no peer in army circles in the south. Her brother, after one serious illness during the yellow fever the previous autumn, was in the best of health and the height of hope and spirits. Always a frequent visitor at their bright army home at the old barracks, he had become practically a day boarder, as he expressed it, since the advent of Aunt Elinor. The war, that left its scars on so many a soldier's frame, seemed to have bequeathed no bitterness to the men who huddled in the field. They that fought so manfully in the smoke-shrouded ranks, either blue or gray, had no stomach for the post-bellum warfare waged in congress and convention by untried orators of the McKinnon type—men so seldom heard of on the fighting line that only when the war was over did we begin to realize the valorous zeal that burned unquenchable in their breasts. McKinnon had gone no more to the old home city. He scored brilliantly a while in Georgia after the war—prominent in the bureau of freedmen, refugee and abandoned lands—then went to congress on the carpet-bag ticket, but only for a term. We heard of him in Mexico in '69, head of some colonization scheme that soon dwindled into smoke, then lost track of him entirely.

As for the old brigade, the few remaining forms are bent; the beards are thinned and grizzled; the old and honored leaders have almost all been gathered to their fathers; only one or two of those that, rising with it, won the star of command, still move and have their being. But as year follows year, the few survivors gather to tell again the tales of Gainesville, Gettysburg and the awful wilderness, and to crown with love and loyalty the names of those that made them and fed and lived with them through all that heroic struggle for national life, there rings ever a sentiment second only to the faith and fidelity they owe the flag—boundless in their belief in the men that wore the blue; boundless, also, is their soldierly admiration for the men that wore the gray.

[THE END]

PROOF OF HER CONSTANCY.

Widow Never Felt Quite Right (All Her Husband's Rings Were Welded).

"Yes," the widow answered, according to the Baltimore Sun, glancing down at her pretty, plump, white hands, as she rocked complacently back and forth, "my ring is rather broad, I know. You see, I have been widowed three times, and I used to wear my wedding rings in turn; first John's for a few days, then I would put on Edward's and then I would wear the ring Robert gave me. But I never felt quite happy.

"When I was wearing John's ring, I felt somehow as though I was disloyal to Edward and Robert. When I put on Edward's ring, I felt unhappy because I seemed to be neglecting John and Robert, and when it came time to take off that ring and give Robert's ring its turn, I felt as though I was disloyal to my first and second. Finally I solved the problem by having all three rings welded together.

"It does make rather a broad band," she said holding up her left hand and looking at the circlet in question, "but then, you see, it makes me feel that I am being constant to all three of them."

Just a Reminder.
A doctor's manservant came to announce a patient who was unfavorably known as a wealthy skindiff, insolent and overbearing withal, and a notoriously bad payer. The doctor ordered the patient to be shown in, and offered him a chair in such a position as to be in full view of a skeleton standing in one corner of the room.

"Ah!" exclaimed the patient, somewhat scared, "a skeleton!"

"Yes, sir," replied the doctor, "it is that of one of my deceased patients. He never would pay his fees, and so I was compelled to sue the relatives for his bones."

"I will step in again presently! Good morning, doctor!" gasped the patient and hastily retired.

Next morning the doctor received payment in full of his long-standing account.—Smith's Weekly.

Unappreciative.

"No," said Fogg, "it's no use for me to go to concerts. I went once, and liked it well enough too; but great guns! when I took up next morning's paper I was flabbergasted. It told of rambles in bosky dells, shimmering musings over the dimpled waters of the gurgling brook, the sighing of summer breezes, the roar and rush of the winter's storm, the merry singing of birds, the frolickings of lambs, the daisy-piled fields, the lover's soft glances, and—in fact, half a hundred other things that I didn't see or hear when that fellow was fiddling at the concert. It made me so ashamed of myself that all these things were going on right in front of me and I not know it that I just made up my mind that concerts weren't in my line."—Boston Transcript.

A Real Service.

Governor Raderford, of New Hampshire, dislikes traps, although at times he will hand a quarter to one of the travelling fraternity. Not long ago he found a husky young hobo lying under a tree at a lonely place in the country. The governor listened to the old hard-luck story, and gave the tramp some change. Then he said, encouragingly: "Down there on the left, my friend, there is a farmer who wants men to help him thresh wheat." "Thankee, sir," said the tramp, turning to the right; "thankee, I m'ht have gone down that way aced stial likee."—Argonaut.

When "Old Glory" Goes By

By L. C. Moille

Bright and fresh as that day new-born,
Our flag looked on that thrilling morn'
Proudly carried down crowded street,
(Drumming cadenced the marching feet)
Men and striplings then forward step,
Children shouted and women wept,
When "Old Glory" went by,
Like a glimpse of the sky,
To live for or to die.

Where the battle-waves broke most red
Thrice its bearers were tumbled dead,
Thrice 'twas snatched from the falling man,
Down gaped lines cheers then louder ran,
Cheerings echoed by dying men,
Living bravely faced death again,
When "Old Glory" waved by,
Like a glimpse of the sky,
To live for or to die.

Still unsullied by deed or fray,
Freedom's flag flies world-wide to-day,
Gray-beard "Vets." a fast-thinning band,
Clothing ranks, 'neath this banner stand;
Where its hallowed, dear folds appear,
Children, women and men all cheer,
When "Old Glory" goes by,
Like a glimpse of the sky,
To live for or to die.

STARTED IN DIXIE

THE SOUTH SAID TO HAVE ORIGINATED MEMORIAL DAY.

A Georgia Lady First Suggested the Idea—Has Been Observed in the Northern States Since 1908.

At this season we read not a few newspaper stories of some new find concerning the beginning of Memorial day tribute of flowers. The south has gotten on a little less telling how the custom had its start in a Georgia town.

In January, 1868, Miss Lizzie Lutherford, of Columbus Ga., who had labored zealously during the war as a member of the Soldiers' Aid society, asked Mrs. Jane Martin to go with her to the cemetery to look after the soldiers' graves there. On the way home the ladies talked of the men that had given up their lives for their cause, and Miss Lutherford suggested that the Soldiers' Aid form itself into a memorial association, and that a day every year be set aside for caring for and decorating the soldiers' graves. Her companion received the suggestion with enthusiasm; thought it would be an easy matter to interest other women in the memorial idea.

At the next meeting of the Soldiers' Aid society there was organized the Ladies' Memorial association, which should provide for annual decoration of the graves. The date chosen for the flower-strewing was April 24. Societies all over the south sprang up in response to an appeal from the Columbus Memorial association, and the annual custom was established.

The north sympathized with this tribute, but found the date chosen by the south too early. A southerner writes thus of the adoption of the custom by the northerners: "The north looked on, thought the custom good, took it to herself and has hallowed it as she does her Thanksgiving obligation. April was too early for her flowers, hence she set apart May 30."

The first general observance of the day in the north was in 1868. Gen. John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, sent out a long order, which contained these words: "The 30th of May is designated for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country. No form of ceremony is prescribed, but poets and comrades will in their own way arrange fitting services and testimonials of respect." And it was added: "If other eyes grow dull and other hearts cold to the trust, ours shall keep it well as long as the warmth and light of life remains to us."

It is said that a veteran living in Cincinnati had made the suggestion to the adjutant general of the grand army, and he in turn drafted a general order to the Grand Army posts to set aside a decoration day. Gen. Logan enlarged the order and sent it out officially. In 1868, on a special day, soldiers' graves were decorated in 183 cemeteries of 27 states; the next year 336 cities and towns in 21 states observed Memorial day. It is now one of our great national holidays.

Miss Lutherford said she got her inspiration for Memorial day from a story called "Initials" in which was described a custom among Germans of decorating the graves of friends on a special day.

ELLEN THAYER.

Due Clara Barton.
Much credit is due to Clara Barton, founder of the American National Red Cross, for the identification of northern dead in southern graves.

CIVIL WAR MEMORIES.

In Reviewing Past One Realizes Both Sides Were Impelled in a Great Movement of Sentiment.

To-day this nation honors the memory of those who died for their country and pays homage to their surviving comrades who risked their lives in the same noble cause. And when we have placed flowers on the graves of the dead heroes and stood uncovered as the thinning line of veterans winds slowly past let us turn from contemplating the heroism of dying for one's country to considering the greater heroism of living for it.

What the country needs most to-day is the patriot whose highest purpose is to maintain in all its glory and honor the nation for which the patriot of the early '60s freely offered and gave his life. Our chief duty is to preserve in peace and unity what was won in war.

Sometimes it is much easier to die for one's country than to live for it. There is no glamour, no dash, no spectacle or enthusiasm in winning the moral victories of peace. They come chiefly as the result of battles of the mind, moral conflicts, to the heroes of which the nation gives neither honors, pensions nor medals.

The man who lives for his country is just as jealous for her honor as the man who dies for it. He does not place a wreath of flowers on the grave of a veteran and then betray the nation for which that veteran gave his life. He is among the first to honor the heroes of the war because he is himself a hero—a hero of peace.

This country paid a heavy price for liberty and national union. It cannot maintain these things without further sacrifices. But the price the living have to pay is not in blood and treasure, but in obedience to law, in respect for justice, in fidelity to our ideals, principles and institutions.—Chicago Evening Post.

Holiday to Be Preserved.

It is to be hoped that Memorial day will never lose its sanctity. As long as Old Glory waves and the repulse survives it should remain the one day devoted to rehearsing the immortal valor of the millions of American freemen who died that their country might live.

Not Divided in Death.

In the north, as in the south, there is no sectional distinction; the graves of the union and the confederate dead are decorated alike. They lie side by side in our national cemeteries.

TWO MOURNERS.

"Sleep," quoth the one with the silver locks,

"Sleep till the life anew;

This flower is red for the blood you shed in the struggle of sixty-two.

"Sleep," quoth the maid with a throbbing heart,

"Caroused by a sweetheart's tear;

For my love is there, 'neath the roses fair, On the grave of a volunteer."

CHAPTER XXVIII.—CONTINUED.

"I could not help it," he began. "You must know how I love you, and when I heard—"

"Heard!" and up went the hands in impotent wrath and protest. "How dare you—listen? Oh! Don't I know what—" but then the torrent of her words was stemmed by the sight of the changing light in the deep blue eyes, and all in a second she saw them clouding again as in pain and amaze they had clouded the bitter night of her impetuous, inexcusable attack two years ago. Yes, and his face was paling, his lips setting. He was seeing her again as time and again in mind's eye he must have seen her—unjust, ungrateful, unreasoning, in face of all that he had done and endured for her and for those she loved. And then—O heaven! with pain, disappointment, yet with conviction—conviction that she was after all not the Rosalie he had loved and worshipped in spite of herself, but the Rosalie she really was—proud, passionate, ungrateful, unjust; yes, utterly unworthy—he had dropped his strong hands and was slowly turning—surely turning away. Now he would go and never dream how she had prayed for forgiveness and for him and for the time when she could tell him all. And now he had come all unannounced and had startled and stunned her, and beard—heard her weak, unmaidenly words, and, ah, there was the rub! would think, would surely think that she knew he was there, and so was only acting a part to lure him back. Oh, the shame, the bitter shame of it! But none the less was he going, and this time it might be for good and all. It was more than she could bear. It was the last and cruellest stroke of the evil fate that had so long hounded and pursued her. It broke the last prop of her stubborn womanly pride, her long-ried, failing strength, and for the first time in her daring, fearless, resolute life, Queen Rosalie threw out nerveless, groping hands for aid, and, sudden as the stroke of heaven, went crashing down.

O blessed sun that sank behind the ridge and would not see! O blessed songsters that, trilling their last good-night, would suffer no other sound. O wise old Pyramus to wander off beneath the blossoming trees and give peace to him who sprang, too late to seize; who knelt and, defiant of hygienic laws, lifted the "bonnie, swooning head; clasped again the now pliant, yielding form, pressed kiss after kiss upon the soft, unresponsive but unresisting lips, and plead and prayed and called on heaven and on her until, with faint sigh, the fluttering breath returned, and then the dark eyes slowly opened and one moment seemed ready again to blaze with the battle fire of the south, but that presently took refuge beneath the white flag of their own, long-lashed lids, and with another sigh, with a soft glow stealing slowly over rounded throat and cheek and even to the snowy brow, the beautiful, humbled face turned fairly toward him and buried itself in the blue of the broad shoulder. Like that of Appomattox, it was the surrender of utter exhaustion.

General and Mrs. Stossel.

There has been some debate whether General Anatole Stossel was an valiant and determined as he might have been in the defense of Port Arthur, but nothing has been said to detract from the esteem and admiration felt for his brave wife, who ministered to the wounded with untiring devotion during the long siege and often exposed herself to danger. She was wounded as a result of her disregard of peril, but recovered from the injury. Nothing she did won her greater admiration than her action in adopting a levy of fatherless children whose natural protectors lost their lives in the defense of Port Arthur.

A Japanese Picket's Dugout.

During the extremely cold weather of last winter the Japanese soldiers who were on picket duty in Manchuria secured protection and lessened their hardships by means of various devices. A dugout on the hillside sometimes afforded the picket shelter from both war and weather.

Soldiers Robbing People in Warsaw.
The revolutionary demonstrations in various parts of the Russian empire have nowhere been more violent than in Warsaw, once the capital of the now dismembered and suppressed kingdom of Poland. The condition of nearly existing is shown in the fact that the soldiers patrolling the streets often impatiently rob the passersby and under pretense of searching them for revolutionaries take from them their watches or money.

Passing of the Pillory.

The question has recently been mooted whether the custom of wife beating might not be stopped if the practice of whipping such offenders at the post were revived. The state of Delaware has long been famous as a commonwealth where the whipping post and pillory still survived, but Governor Lea has signed a bill abolishing the latter institution. Offenders were punished in the pillory by fastening the head and hands in a wooden framework and thus exposing the prisoner to public derision. The last time a white woman was punished at the whipping post in Delaware was in 1835.

The Czar and His Son.

The troubles which the Russian autocracy is facing make the present emperor, Nicholas II., wonder whether he will be able to preserve his throne for occupation by his son, a baby known as the Grand Duke Alexis Nicholasvitch. The czar is said to be in constant fear not only of his own assassination, but of that of his infant son and successor. When the czarowitz was born on the 12th of last August a salute of 101 guns announced the auspicious event.

Japanese Firing Over the Hills.

The high angle firing of the Japanese with Comet guns during the Russian retreat from Mukden was an important element in their successful pursuit of the enemy. The latter encamped at might so far as possible behind high hills for protection from artillery fire. But by elevating their guns the Japanese were able in many cases to shoot projectiles over the intervening hills and drop them into the midst of the Russians.

Queen Alexandra on Horseback.

Queen Alexandra of England is passionately fond of animals, and especially of horses, and she rides and drives a great deal. She does not ride horse back as much now as formerly, however, owing to an accident at a hunt in which she was thrown from her horse with much violence and might have been seriously injured but for the timely action of one of the party. She takes an intelligent interest in the live stock on the royal estates, and the royal kennels receive much attention from her, as dogs are her especial pets.

Senator Elect William Warner.

Major William Warner, the newly chosen senator from Missouri and successor of Francis M. Cockrell, was born in Wisconsin in 1840 and studied at Lawrence university, Wisconsin, and the University of Michigan. He served with credit in the civil war and at its close took up the practice of law and settled in Kansas City, Mo. He has been United States district attorney and member of congress and was a candidate for governor of Missouri in 1892.

A Painting Given Away

At the urgent solicitation of the Woman's Home Companion, Mr. Paul de Longpre, who is the greatest painter of flowers in the world, consented to make a painting of what he considered "The Three Most Beautiful Roses," and the painting is without doubt one of the masterpieces of this great artist. This magnificent picture is reproduced in all its original grandeur on the cover of the Woman's Home Companion for June. Although this cover is an accurate reproduction of a painting worth hundreds of dollars, yet the June number, which has this exquisite cover, may be obtained at any first-class news stand or direct from the publishers for the trivial sum of only ten cents.

Mr. Paul de Longpre is justly styled "King of Flower Painters." He not only paints roses, but every flower that grows, and is the highest authority on flowers. His paintings are found in the most select homes. Some have sold for as much as seven thousand five hundred dollars ($7,500.00).

Artists, art critics and competent judges all agree that the cover of the Woman's Home Companion far exceeds those of any other magazine.

The Woman's Home Companion is a magazine which in beauty and excellence, art, stories, illustrations and fashions, exceeds all other home and family magazines. The Woman's Home Companion is published by The Crowell Publishing Company, New York City, also Chicago, Ill., at One Dollar a year, and is the favorite magazine in nearly half a million homes, where it is read each and every issue by three million people.

The School

JOHN WIRT DINSMORE, Editor

The following letter from one of our Normal graduates shows what Berea can do and is doing for her people.

One only needs to visit the mountains to see that Berea College is doing a great and good work there. Teachers who once stood at the head of the ranks are continually dropping out (or are being dropped out), and many of their places are being filled by Berea students.

Were Berea College to be blotted out of existence this year, I believe her influence would go on for years and years, blessing and uplifting the mountain people, because each year young men and women are returning from Berea to their homes in the mountains with higher ideas of life, and who know no stopping this side of success.

Berea College is also a potent factor in building up the homes of the mountain people because boys and girls who have been to Berea, and have learned more of what living means, can not be content to live in the "little log cabin in the lane" as many of their parents have done.

As for myself, I feel that I am one of the best of the Normal graduates, but then I feel like using the words of Paul when he said something like the following: "But the grace of God was not bestowed upon me in vain."

Last year I taught a large first-class school and have the same one under promise again this year. I have taught five years in succession, and with the exception of one term, I have taught within less than two miles of home. I hold an average of nearly 92 per cent, and was county examiner in Owsley last year. This is due to the instruction which I received in Berea, which is the only school I ever attended besides the free schools in Owsley.

J. D. CREECH.

"I Dunno."

"You mind the time when we were young
And oft were caught in mischief, Bob?
Remember how the fatherly tongue
Was often checked with frightened sob?
When we were asked why thus we dilt,
We stammered out with fidgeting low,
Our faces from our parents hid,
"N' I dunno, 'n' I dunno!"

Sometimes we tinkered with the clock
To see if it were running right,
It always gave our nerves a shock
When it would strike without his night,
Quite unexpectedly to us.
When we were jabbing in the case;
It almost seemed to make a fuss
That it might get us in disgrace.

Perchance somebody's prized gold pen
By one of us was lightly gripped
At some untimely season when
(We'd heard the pen was diamond tipped)
We'd fancied that we were secure
And started to investigate.
That diamond point was just a lure,
And sad was then two urchins' fate.

"What made you touch those things, I say?
Come, straighten up and stop your noise
No one can put a thing away
And have it safe from you two boys.
What made you do it? Come, explain!"
But still we writhed and murmured low
And sought to hide our tears in vain
"N' I dunno, 'n' I dunno!"

Get Common After Awhile.

"He thinks he has the most wonderful baby on earth."
"Is it his first?"
"Didn't I say he thought it the most wonderful that ever happened?"

They Frequently Do.

"His wife presses his trousers for him."
"What of that? She probably had plenty of practice before they were married doing the same thing."

Some Evidence.

"I consider him a true poet."
"What has he written?"
"I don't know, but he assures me he has never perpetrated a parody on 'Maud Muller.'"

The Come Down.

This is a cruel, cruel world,
As you agree, no doubt.
A man just gets his fortune made
In politics or law or trade,
And then his pipe goes out.

On the Free List.

"Soda water doesn't appear to be a popular beverage in your country."
"No. You see, what is so cheap that we hate to pay good money for it."

Heroic Treatment.

"How can I break myself of the coffee habit?"
"Try living at a boarding house for a while."

To Suit Their Taste.

The coming race will be a bird.
Although some men might blush,
Could they be the flag of the line,
That it would be a fish.

Mercenary.

"She fell in love with a soldier."
"Brass buttons attract her?"
"No; his $18 a month."

It is really remarkable what a commonplace creature a hen becomes when eggs are worth only a shilling a dozen.

The little boy that every other little boy on the block can kick is pretty apt to be a good little boy.

Giant Ears of Corn.
Iowa has recently produced some remarkable corn crops owing in part to the work of the Agricultural college at Ames and to the important discoveries in the growing of corn which have been made. The picture shown illustrates the agricultural achievements of the state. The three ears of corn are of the Yellow Dent variety, were grown in Ottumwa county and together weighed five pounds. The largest ear had 1,000 grains in sixteen longitudinal rows.

BUILDING OF CONCRETE.

Suggestions for Obtaining Cheap and Durable Building Material Where Stone Is Scarce.

The absence of good building material in the shape of stone or wood in many districts has brought before farmers the important question of building farm structures out of cement and sand. The success of this method of construction has been thoroughly proven in a great number of cases. In the large structures now standing, a number of which are very old and quite beautiful buildings.

Many of the most successful constructions of such buildings make building blocks by molding the concrete, when mixed in a simple mold of wood formed by nailing together four one-inch planks which are eight inches wide, and setting them on a smooth surface, preferably of rough timber, then pouring the mixed concrete into them and allowing to stand until solid. The sketch illustrates one of these devices.

Many of the larger but roughly constructed concrete walls are being built by pouring the concrete between the temporary walls built of one-inch boards. Practically all of the heavy foundation work now being constructed in the cities under large buildings, is made in this way. For small farm structures this is perhaps the cheapest method to employ. The procedure of such building is about as follows:

First there is constructed a solid wall of one-inch planking on the inner side of the ground, whose foundation of the wall is to stand. This is covered on a height of some four feet, with the smooth side out, being firmly braced within. Another wall of the same nature is constructed and placed some six to eight inches away from the first one, the space between the two walls being filled with concrete. When this has been constructed all around in the manner described, concrete is poured into the space and allowed to harden. As often as the mold is filled, concrete is poured in, and the concrete poured in the layers of one foot each. The heavy walls are allowed to remain until the concrete is quite solid.

The device used is by far the most practical. First it has an advantage in that it is a simple affair, which requires the presence of no special tools or equipment. The inside wall is made of one-inch planking, which is very cheap and can be obtained by the use of constructed molds, says Farm and Home. These walls are usually smooth enough on the inside to take a putty finish and paint without further treatment.

The concrete used for this purpose, which is meeting with widest success, is made of one part of cement, three parts sand and five parts of broken stone or not gravel. This mixture is prepared as it is used, since if allowed to stand any length of time after mixing it will harden and not make a solid wall.

Such a building is practically fire proof, and if the walls are not thick will be very dry within. If the walls are very thick, however, the moisture will collect upon the inside of them and will not allow the plaster to remain without cracking. A comparison of cost between frame and brick construction is considerably in favor of concrete. In an estimation on a building 24x26 feet, two stories high, the frame cost $724, brick $724, while a similar construction of concrete, with two walls, the outer three inches and the inner five inches thick, would cost about $402.

Machines for the molding of single and two-piece building blocks are on the market ranging in cost from $25 to $500, but for ordinary frame structures the scaffolding molds are by far the cheapest and most practical. For fancy structures, dwelling houses, etc., molded concrete blocks are very serviceable and may be introduced in any part of the wall to decorate it.

Keep Frosts Away.
A small straw mat laid in full bloom may be moved from a late frost by turning the mat from between the rows and spreading on the plants when danger threatens. It should be removed the next morning so as not to interfere with the pollination of the blossoms. A smudge may be used as a protection against light frosts. Brush or straw that is damp enough to smolder may be used and a little coal tar will help. In Sweden protection is made for emergencies by planting stakes smeared with some inflammable substance at intervals in the field, to be lighted at some time during the night if a frost is imminent. The slight protection afforded by the cover cloud of smoke together with the circulation of air caused by the fire, is sufficient to keep away a frost on many occasions.

HANDY WOOL TYING BOX.

Way in Which the Wool Grower May Enhance the Value of His Product.

The selling side of farming is, in many cases as important as the producing side. After incurring the expense of time and labor in the production of an article it is very poor policy to give so little attention to the marketing of it that its full value will not be realized. One important factor in securing the full value of an article is its appearance. There are few if any articles of exchange in which the appearance will not materially affect the price that may be obtained therefor.

While it is not proper to try to induce the appearance by such deceptive methods as putting the larger apples on the top of the barrel, the larger and riper berries on the top of the box, or the larger potatoes on the top of the load, work spent on the improvement of the appearance of the whole product is not only legitimate but is work well spent. It increases the salability of the immediate product, and creates a favorable impression regarding the character of products to be had from such a farm.

In tying the wool clip into bundles having a neat and attractive appearance a tying box is quite a convenient aid, especially to an amateur. There are different styles of tying boxes, but the following is perhaps as good as any in very simple and easily and cheaply constructed, suggests J. J. McGeron, in Farmers' Review. All the material needed for the construction of this box is a 10-foot dressed board 12 inches wide, two pieces of 2x1 three feet long, a few nails and four small hinges and serves to fasten them on with.

From the 10-foot board cut three pieces 4 1/2 feet long. Two of these will serve as the leaves, A A in the illustration. The other is cut into four strips, B B B B and fastened to the 2x1 cross pieces, C C, leaving a small crack between each two in which to place the twine. The two leaves, A A, are hinged to the two cross strips so they will open out flat or fold up against the board, B.

This board is made from the remainder of the 10-foot board, cutting two pieces one foot long, nailing together and fastening to top of the strip, B, as shown in the illustration. Three holes, as shown, are bored in the lower edge of the board to carry the twine. A stitched piece, E, can be made to hold the leaves together when they are folded up or latches can be put on the board for this purpose.

To use the box set it on some empty box or other support of convenient height, open the leaves out flat, pass the twine through each hole in the board and along the corresponding space between the strips. Be sure that the twine is down in these tracks so that the wool will not slip out and the board is ready to receive the fleece. The fleece should be laid on the board flesh side down and lengthwise of the board.

When the fleece has been put in proper shape and the leaves are folded up the sides will be folded in and the fleece is ready to roll. Roll singly and tie with the twine from either side, loosen the leaves, turn the fleece and tie likewise with the center string. If the fleece has been kept in proper shape while being taken off of the sheep this will be all the string necessary to hold it in good shape.

FARM JOTTINGS.

Work time into the ground.
Corn in the ear is the safest form in which the farmer can buy his seed. Shelter belts in protecting the land from winds, influence a larger crop yield.

In buying seed corn, make sure that it comes from a latitude not far from that in which it is to be planted. If corn is placed in a warm room while it still contains a large amount of moisture it will either mold or grow.

In a rotation clover should come before corn or potatoes if the best results are obtained. But few plants will thrive in a wet soil. A good drain is sometimes better than manure.

Plant several rows of sweet corn, and plant at different times, so as to have a rotation. A good supply of sweet corn comes early and handy. The work of drainage is closely connected with the producing capacity of the farm. There are numerous farms that only need to be drained to make them very productive.

Formic Acid for Strength.

Two Paris physicians claim to have discovered that formic acid can increase the strength of people in an extraordinary manner. One of the doctors experimented upon himself in two days, it is said, he doubled his strength, and in five days trebled it. Formic acid is a colorless liquid found in the bodies of ants, in the hairs and other parts of certain caterpillars and in nettles. It has a pungent smell, is highly corrosive and may be prepared artificially in many different ways. Nettles, bees and ants owe their stinging powers to the presence of the acid.

Chestnut Elephants.

"Elephants in Uganda have a peculiar aspect that I have not noticed elsewhere," writes a traveler. "They cover their bodies, as a protection against flies, with the bright red volcanic dust contained in the soil. This gives them a remarkable appearance, as instead of being a slaty gray, as in the Nile valley their color, when thus covered with dust, resembles that of a chestnut horse."

Never Washed.

A writer tells of a Kentish farm worker whose heavy hand he grasped. "Good Kent dirt," said the man catching in a critical glance. "Haven't had time to wash your hands before tea?" was the question. "Wash my hands!" exclaimed the man. "They had become explanatory. I never washes my hands. When they get 'ard I the 'em."

Prize of $4,000.

Among the prizes offered by the Paris Academy of Sciences to inventors is one of $4,000, founded by Pierre Guzman, which is to go to the person who finds a way of communicating with the inhabitants of another planet. Another prize—the largest—awards anyone who discovers an infallible remedy against Asiatic cholera.

Scholarly Japanese Statesman.

Bunji Kaneko, the distinguished Japanese who has been lecturing in some eastern cities, is a brilliant scholar, educated in this country and having perfect command of English. He was one of the three statesmen who drew up the present constitution of Japan.

Arm Tattooed with Dates.

The arm of a well-known London gentleman might well be described as a chronicle of his life. It is rapidly being covered with dates. In addition to his own and his wife's birth dates and the record of their marriage, he has the name and date of the birth of each of his children.

"I think," said the reporter, "that the public would like to know how you managed to live to such a great age."

"By perseverance," replied the centenarian, "I just kept on living."—Yonkers Herald.

African Volcanoes.

There are several active volcanoes in German East Africa. Most prominent among them is the Elmal-Rohd, the crater of which has a diameter of nearly four miles. A German scientific expedition is at present investigating these volcanoes.

Gout Hair Crop.

What is thought to be a record clip of mohair from Angora goats has just been sold by a company which has year started a goat ranch near Tennessee. The goats yielded from four to nine pounds of hair each a total of 4,500 pounds.

COYLE & HAYES

BEREA, KENTUCKY

Berea and Vicinity.

GATHERED FROM A VARIETY OF SOURCES

Mrs. C. F. Hanson is visiting her parents in London this week.

Mr. W. H. Porter returned this week from a trip to the southern part of this State.

Miss Lou Spier's mother is expected to arrive from Asheville, N. C., on Thursday for a visit with her daughter.

Miss Lizzie D. Williams, '04, of New Haven, Conn., arrived on Tuesday and will visit in Berea until after Commencement.

A verandah is being added to the Williams building. The pillars are of the rustic order similar to those in the Administration building verandah. The addition will add much to the appearance of the building.

The Y. W. C. A. will have a booth on the campus near the Tabernacle to day (Thursday) at which you may buy the best quality of ice-cream, cake and candy in any quantity you desire. "Come early and come often," is the welcome extended to all.

Alpha Zeta Literary Society will hold its annual "love-feast" next Friday evening. A time of heart-to-heart fellowship flavored with refreshments is expected. Utile Dulce Society will also enjoy a social gathering on the lawn of Tutor King the same evening.

A protracted meeting is now in progress at the Glades Colored Christian Church, and will continue for two weeks. Meetings each evening at 7.30, and at 11 a.m. on Sunday. The services began on last Sunday evening with a good attendance.

ance, and the interest is increasing. The Rev. A. J. Robinson, of Richmond, preaches at each service. He is a very able speaker, and a hearty invitation is extended to all to come and hear him.

The Porter Drug Co. have this week placed a large ice-cream fountain in their already well equipped store. The fountain is a handsome piece of furniture with very dainty carving, and set with three large mirrors, one on top, and one on either side. The counter is of mahogany, with marble top, and accommodates nine chairs. This splendid equipment will be in operation in a few days, and lovers of first-class ice-cream and cooling drinks may have their wants supplied in the very best fashion.

The Field Day sports will begin at 8.30 this morning and at 2 o'clock p. m. on the Athletic Field. The new running track will be in condition to be used for the races, and is so located as to enable spectators to witness the long runs at all stages of the race. The list of events includes dashes from 50 yards to 440 yards. Hurdle races, one-half mile and one mile runs, high and broad jumps, pole vaulting, etc. The admission for both morning and afternoon is only fifteen cents, and a large crowd is expected. Don't fail to be there.

A number of workers from the College went out to Narrow Gap last Sunday and assisted at two meetings in the Church house there. A song service of solos, duets, and quartets was a special feature both afternoon and evening. The attendance at both services was large, and at the evening service quite a number expressed a desire to lead a Christian life. The results of the Sunday services were only the fruit of the faithful ministry of the workers on the field from day to day, and the attending blessing of God. We trust the work may continue and grow.

Secretary Gamble was called to Alexis, Ill., on Friday by the sudden death of his brother, Hugh, on Thursday. Mr. Gamble had hurt his hand about a week previous, but had given it no special thought, until about an hour before his death, when blood poisoning set in with such fatal results. Mr. Gamble visited Berea about three years ago, and will no doubt be remembered by those who met him at that time, and who will learn with deep regret of his untimely decease. He was a widower, and leaves a little girl seven years of age among other relatives and friends to mourn his loss. Secretary Gamble is expected home this week.

The musical department of the College gave a recital in the Tabernacle on Monday evening to quite a large audience. Owing to the length of the program, selections by the Harmonia and Orchestra were necessarily omitted. The program was made up of piano and violin solos, a piano duet, vocal solos and a trio. The Glee Club also contributed two numbers. The piano selections exhibited quite a wide range of style and expression, and showed that painstaking work had been done in their preparation. The vocal numbers were also well given, especially those by Misses Putnam and Hollister. The evening's entertainment showed that the Music department is being competently directed by Miss Loer and Prof. Weaver.

G. A. R. Encampment at Berea.

The following letter has been received from Prof. L. V. Dodge who is attending the Department Encampment at Louisville:

May 23, 1905.

Dear Citizen,—We have bagged the game! We came to the Department Encampment instructed to invite them to come to Berea next year. Elizabethtown was seeking it, and had a large part of the usual leaders committed to that place. But a stand-up fight in open convention, amid the keenest interest of the day, resulted in a victory for Berea, by more than two to one! Hurrah for the gathering at Berea next year!

L. V. Dodge.

Decoration Day Demonstration.

Next Sunday the Rev. A. E. Thomson will preach the annual sermon to veterans at the Tabernacle at 11 a. m. On next Tuesday Decoration Day will be duly observed by the College in conjunction with the Capt. James West Post of the G. A. R. At 9.30 a. m. the exercises will begin in the Tabernacle, consisting of an appropriate program by the Model Schools and members of the Rhetorical classes. These exercises will be followed by a march to the cemetery to decorate the graves of the veterans buried there. At 1.30 Prof. Dodge will give his lecture on James Garfield, at the Tabernacle. The band, drum corps and glee club will assist in the exercises of the day.

Y. M. C. A. Social.

Ladies Hall lawn presented quite a busy scene on Saturday evening from 6.30 to 9 o'clock. A tent had been erected on the lawn during the day, from which ice-cream and cake were dispensed during the evening, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The weather was rather chilly for such an occasion, and the receipts were therefore smaller than had been hoped for. Japanese lanterns were hung on the shrubs and in various places about the grounds, which added ed a cheery aspect to the surroundings. "Social privileges" had been granted, and were taken advantage of by quite a large number of men and maidens in friendly promenades about the well beaten paths to the strains of music by the band in one of their ever popular concerts, and also in the enjoyment of refreshments. The gathering was quite representative in that young and old, faculty and students were in evidence on the grounds and aided by their presence and purchases, so far as the temperature would permit, in making the evening a success.

Mock Trial.

Quite a number of visitors attended the Mock Trial held in Alpha Zeta Society room on Friday evening last. Mr. Walter E. Mill was the defendant, and the charge was, "Stirring up sedition against the United States Government, and exerting an influence tending to anarchy." Prof. Hummel acted as judge. Messrs. R. B. Roberts and Jno. Gerdes were Attorneys for the Commonwealth, and Messrs. H. Kimmerl and W. E. Rix were retained as attorneys for the defense. After the Jury had been duly sworn, the case was proceeded with. The prosecution based their case on the testimony of four witnesses who swore from intimate knowledge of the facts in the case that the defendant was guilty beyond a doubt of the indictment issued against him. The defense, on the testimony of four witnesses, endeavored to prove alibis in the case of the prisoner in two instances; prejudice on the part of the prosecution; and that the life of the prisoner had ever been contradictory to the charge under which he was indicted. The Jury returned a verdict of "guilty." John J. Lynch acted as Clerk of the Court, and Claude B. Ernst as Sheriff.

The Senior's Cane Rush.

The Seniors and a few intimate friends, in all about fifteen, were happily entertained at the home of Prof. Mason on Tuesday evening from 7.30 to 9.30. The genial host proved himself an adept in introducing novel features, chief of which was what may be termed "a cane rush." A sufficient number of canes had been cut from various kinds of trees, and decked with chase colors. In the course of the evening the Professor reminded his guests of the many "hard licks" they had put in together in the Forestry class, and expressed a desire to test the retentive power of their minds along forestry lines. Each Senior was invited to choose a cane from the whole number, and if able to give the tree name from which it was cut received a passing grade, but if capable of giving the botanical name also was graduated with honors. This exercise proved a most interesting part of the evening's entertainment, and each one carried away a cane as a souvenir. We might say in this connection that only a small number "flunked" in the test. Mrs. Mason was equally efficient in her duties as hostess, and succeeded in adding the fine touches in the way of delicious refreshments to an evening replete with pleasure in every particular. Some class songs and yells gave evidence of the buoyancy of spirit among the Seniors, who are loud in their expression of the appreciation of the evening's enjoyment so kindly furnished them at the hands of Prof. and Mrs. Mason.

PROGRESS OF THE RUSSO-JAP WAR

What is Transpiring at the Capital of the Nation, Together With Exciting Events Occurring in Foreign Countries.

War Items.

With a suspicious stoppage of dispatches from Manchuria and a strong possibility that Vice Adm. Rojdestvensky has cut his last communications with home and set forth on the final stage of his journey to his goal, either Togo or Vladivostok, interest is manifested in naval and military circles in St. Petersburg in the two fold field of war.

The apparently complete disappearance of the Russian far eastern fleet leads to the belief either that a battle is imminent or that Adm. Rojdestvensky has succeeded in establishing a naval base.

Vice Adm. Birlier, who has been named for the supreme naval command in the Pacific, will leave for Vladivostok on May 25 to assume charge there and make preparations for repulsing and retreating the vessels of Vice Adm. Rojdestvensky's fleet when they arrive.

AN INDUSTRIAL WAR.

It is Feared the Teamsters Strike Will Spread.

Lumbermen's Drivers and the Building Trades Unions May Become Involved in the Struggle—Both Sides Remain Firm.

Chicago, May 22.—Sunday brought no change in the attitude of either side to the labor controversy now in progress in Chicago and everything now points to an extension of the teamsters' strike to many other business houses during the week. The officials of the express companies whose refusal to renege any of their striking employees caused the collapse of the settlement of the trouble, still adhere to their determination not to give employment to any of their former employees, and the other firms involved in the difficulty declared that they would stand by the express companies in the fight. The teamsters' union has taken just as firm a stand as the employers and it was stated by President Shea that the union would never call off the strike until the express companies come to terms.

The first spread of the strike is expected to come when the lumbermen's association, employing 2,400 teamsters, issues an order to their men to make deliveries to all business houses regardless of whether they are involved in the strike or not.

In anticipation of such an order the teamsters met and voted to go on strike should any teamsters be discharged for refusing to obey the order of the association. With non-union drivers making deliveries for the lumbermen the trouble will undoubtedly spread to affiliated industries, as the union men employed on buildings will refuse to handle material delivered by non-union labor.

SERIOUS RACE TROUBLE.

Bloody Riots Between Whites and Blacks in Chicago.

Chicago, May 22.—Chicago is threatened with a race war of serious proportions. Embittered by the shooting of Kinch Carlson, an eight-year-old boy, last week by two negroes, the residents in the vicinity of 29th and Dearborn streets have armed themselves and clashes between white and colored men have become so frequent since the Carlson murder that it has been found necessary to detail scores of policemen in the district to preserve peace. Even this precaution has been unsuccessful in keeping the opposing factions apart.

In a riot which broke out in this district between the whites and the blacks James Gray, colored, was killed. Harry Bernstein was mortally wounded and a building in which Bernstein was being held a captive, suffering from four bullet wounds, was almost entirely wrecked by a mob of 1,000 persons.

RUSSIANS REPULSED.

Detachment of Infantry and Cavalry Attacked Chienkung.

Tokio, May 22.—The following report is published:

"In the direction of Wei Yuan Pao-tien on the morning of May 19, the enemy with two companies of infantry and two squadrons of cavalry again attacked Chienkung but was repulsed at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Simultaneously the enemy with one regiment of infantry and five squadrons of cavalry actively attacked Ching Yang Pao but was entirely repulsed at 6 o'clock in the evening. There had been no material change at Changtu except collisions with scouts since we repulsed the enemy on May 18. On the right bank of the Liao river the enemy's cavalry is concentrating, its main strength being at Kungchullang, eight miles west of Fakoman."

MRS. OGDEN DOREMUS.

Honorary Vice President of the Daughters of American Revolution Dead.

New York, May 22.—Mrs. Ogden Doremus, wife of Prof. R. Ogden Doremus, died, aged 75 years. Mrs. Doremus was a daughter of Capt. Zophar Skidmore, an officer in the Continental army, who was at the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga. She was a regent of the New York chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and honorary vice-president of the national society.

Judge A. W. Tourgee Dead.

Hordunx, May 22.—Judge Abner Whelan Tourgee, of Mayville, N. Y., American counsel here, died of acute uraemia, which resulted from an old wound. Judge Tourgee was taken seriously ill some months ago, but his condition afterwards improved and it was believed his recovery was probable. Recently, however, the disease took another serious turn and Judge Tourgee lingered until now. He was born at Williamsfield, O., May 2, 1838.

Portsmouth, N. H., May 22.—The cruiser Reina Mercedes, captured at Santiago during the war with Spain, has sailed for Newport, R. I., after having been remodelled as a receiving ship.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS

EDWARD JOHNSON.

Newport Police Are Trying To Fasten Many Crimes Upon Him.

Newport, Ky., May 19.—Murders, cold-blooded assaults and many robberies are attributed by the Newport police to Edward Johnson, colored, now in the Newport jail on the technical charge of sending threatening letters to people in Covington and Newport. They also say he is suffering from a religious mania.

The police are trying to prove that Johnson and Henry Williams, who was hanged in Roanoke, Va., recently, robbed and then murdered an old woman near Chester, W. Va., on Thanksgiving day, 1899. A man was lynched for this crime.

That in September, 1900, near Uniontown, Pa., they robbed and killed two Italians and then threw their bodies into a coke oven.

That in October, 1901, they killed a man near Hyndman, Pa.

That in August, 1903, they murdered a woman near Portland, O., and hid her body in the bushes.

These and many other crimes touching assault and robbery are outlined in a letter that, it is thought, Johnson wrote as a confession to the chief of police of Chester, W. Va.

Until he "got religion" Johnson was known in Newport by the police as a bad man.

CRIGLER & CRIGLER.

They Lose Their Case in the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

Frankfort, Ky., May 19.—The court of appeals, by Judge Barker, affirmed the Laurel circuit court in the case of Robert L. and Jacob S. Crigler vs. the commonwealth. The action involves seven indictments and fines for violation of the prohibition laws of Laurel county. The appellants are distillers in Scott county, having branch offices in Covington and Cincinnati. They shipped the whisky from Cincinnati and defended on the ground that the law is an interference with interstate commerce. The court holds that this plea was an evasion as the whisky was made in Kentucky and shipped to Cincinnati and back into the state to avoid the law.

CURTIS JETT.

Noted Feudist Had His Thumb Severed By a Machine.

Frankfort, Ky., May 18.—Curtis Jett, notorious feudist of Breathitt county, who is serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary for assassination, had the thumb of his pistol hand severed by a saw of a machine he was operating in the chair factory of the institution. Jett claims the dismembering was accidental, but persons connected with the prison point to several similar injuries to prisoners which were by design and to avoid hard work. One, King Bird, a notorious prisoner several years ago cut off his hand and threw it from a window to avoid work.

FEARS FOR PRISONERS.

Breathitt County Judge Apprehends Trouble at Coming Trials.

Lexington, Ky., May 20.—The regular term of the Breathitt circuit court at Jackson will convene Monday and the cases against Mose Felner, Sam Fields and Sam Jett will be called. Felner and Fields are charged with murder and confederating to kill Jesse Fields, while Jett is charged with arson, alleged to have been committed 15 years ago.

The court is in a quandary as to how to protect the prisoners, as it is feared that they will be assassinated because of the prominent part they took in the state's behalf in recent feud trials here.

Entertained at Haggin's Farm.

Lexington, Ky., May 18.—Two hundred members of the International Railway Congress arrived here on a special train from Cincinnati. They were met by the Lexington Automobile club and driven to the Elmendorf farm of J. B. Haggin, where they were entertained at luncheon by Manager C. H. Berryman.

Rabies Seize Dog Catcher.

Lexington, Ky., May 20.—Cleveland Sloan, a prominent young turfman, died as the result of a dog bite. Sloan was assisting the city dog catcher in placing some stray dogs in the wagon when one of them bit him. He had convulsions which terminated in his death.

Injured in a Runaway.

Paducah, Ky., May 20.—Miss Flora Wood was thrown from a buggy in a runaway and badly injured. Her left hip was broken, and she was internally injured. Miss Alice Wood and Mrs. J. L. Putnam were also injured.

Fourteen Years in Penitentiary.

Madisonville, Ky., May 19.—The jury in the case of the commonwealth vs. Jeff Morgan, colored, charged with the killing of Ford Lutz, in this city last October, brought in a verdict of guilty and sentenced the defendant to 14 years in the penitentiary.

Intercollegiate Field Meet.

Lexington, Ky., May 20.—In the annual intercollegiate field meet Kentucky university won by a score of 50 points. Kentucky State college was second, with 42 points, and Central university third, with 25 points.

MURDERED AND ROBBED.

Saddle Blood Spattered and the Lawyer's Body Found in the Lane.

Glasgow, Ky., May 20.—News has reached here of the murder and robbery, near Burkaville, of James Skinner, one of the most prominent men in Cumberland county. Skinner had been in Burkaville since Monday engaged in taking depositions in a law suit between himself and E. G. Alexander, of Waterview, and took his horse from the livery stable and left town.

That was the last time he was seen alive. His body was found in a lane near the Cumberland pike, about a mile north of Burkaville. There was a bullet hole in his right temple and three in his breast. His watch, a bill case containing $2,000 in currency and a short sack of silver he had with him when he left town and a bundle of legal paper are gone. His rain coat was buttoned up closely around him, and his hat was on his face.

Near by was his horse and blood on both sides of the saddle leads to the belief that the shooting was done elsewhere, and the body placed on the horse and carried to the spot where it was found.

Two white men are under suspicion, and are being closely watched.

KENTUCKY ODD FELLOWS.

J. L. Brawner, of Mt. Sterling, Was Elected Grand Patriarch.

Louisville, Ky., May 18.—At the session of the annual encampment of Kentucky, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, it was voted to hold the next encampment at Paris, Ky. The officers elected are: J. L. Brawner, Mt. Sterling, grand patriarch; J. P. Wheeler, Ghent, grand high priest; Otto L. Bright, Newport, senior warden; W. R. Conover, Henderson, junior warden; W. H. Cox, Maysville, grand representative; R. G. Elliott, Lexington, grand scribe; George W. Morris, Louisville, treasurer.

The grand patriarch's report showed a net increase of 638 members during the year, making a total of 2,554.

LEARNS HE'S RICH.

Dayton Machinist Dropped His Tools and Quit Work.

Dayton, Ky., May 20.—Geo. Brooks, a machinist, living at 313 Third avenue, has received word from Lincolnshire, England, that his maternal grandmother has just died, leaving him landed property worth between $35,000 and $95,000. Brooks, who has been in this country about 15 years, and during that time has worked 13 years for Fay & Egan, Cincinnati, expects to leave for England within a few weeks and take possession of his estate. He has engaged Attorney Arthur Hall, Newport, to communicate with a London barrister and attend to its transfer. When Brooks heard the glad tidings he immediately quit work.

RESULT OF A FAMILY QUARREL.

Dora Arnett Shot and Fatally Wounded Her Husband.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., May 24.—In a family quarrel at Hendricks, Magoffin county, Dora Arnett shot and fatally wounded her husband Dudley Arnett with a revolver. Arnett had beaten his wife and was trying to take her revolver from her when she fired. The Arnetts are prominent in eastern Kentucky. The woman was placed in jail. Arnett will die.

Salisburyville, Ky., May 24.—D. H. Arnett, once a merchant and lumber dealer of Hendricks, died from the effects of a pistol wound inflicted, it is alleged, by Mrs. Dora Arnett, his wife, Sunday last.

There are different opinions as to whether it was done accidentally or on purpose. Mrs. Arnett is in the custody of the jailer. It is said Arnett while intoxicated abused her. She was formerly a Miss Thompson, of Virginia, and her first husband was D. M. Arnett, son of H. G. Arnett, a prominent citizen of this county.

Mrs. Arnett is prostrated over the affair, and claims the shooting of her husband was accidental. She is related to ex-County Judge J. Wise Hagans, of Breathitt county.

ATE INFECTED HAM.

Nine People Living Near Latonia Were Poisoned.

Covington, Ky., May 24.—Nine people, living near Latonia, Ky., were poisoned by eating infected ham. Three cats and a dog who were given some of the food at the homes where they were pets died. The people are all alive and, with the exception of two, are out of danger.

Those poisoned were: Gus Gunther, Mrs. Gus Gunther, two Gunther children, Eliza Moore, Mrs. Eliza Moore and three Moore children.—Gus Gunther and his family live on the Madison road not far from Holmsdale. Eliza Moore is the ferryman for the Queen City race track. He lives on the bank of the Licking river. Both families purchased ham for supper from a grocer near Latonia. All who ate of the food were soon in agony. Dr. Simpson worked all night with the poisoned people and their lives were saved.

Charged With Assault.

Russellville, Ky., May 24.—Polk Fletcher, John Lacey and Hill and Guy Lyon, charged with criminal assault upon Miss Mary Glader, are in the Logan county jail. The girl identified the prisoners as her assailants and says they also robbed her and her aged father. The prison is being well guarded.

Ex-Confederate Found Drowned.

Bowling Green, Ky., May 24.—N. Brumfield, 65, ex-confederate soldier, who lost one arm during the war, was found drowned in a pond near here. His hat was found near the pond weighed down with a rock, and in it was a note reading: "I am here, but no one to blame."

BLACK-
DRAUGHT
STOCK and
POULTRY
MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight tin of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Doctors generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROCHELLE, GA., Jan. 30, 1905.
Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 99 per cent better.
